ARMY LEADER IMPRESSED BY NSSC

On her visit to the Natick Soldier Systems Center, the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations, Energy and Environment learned about what is done here to protect the Soldier and what NSSC is working on to keep the installation relevant in the future.

BREATHING NEW LIFE INTO ARMY LABS

How can one support the war fighter and attract the talent that will continue doing so for years to come at the Natick Soldier Systems Center?

ROLLING QUIETLY INTO THE FUTURE

As he rolled up the hill near Building 45 at U.S. Army Garrison Natick, Rich Valcourt flipped the high-gear switch on the right side of the steering column, stepped on the accelerator, and reached the top with power to spare.

LEARNING ABOUT SAFETY AT NATICK

Josue Diaz swerved to avoid oncoming traffic as he tried to pass a large truck on a busy two-lane highway.

HISTORY FILLS ORGANIZATION DAY

It began and ended with a strong sense of history. That was the underlying theme of U.S. Army Garrison Natick's 2010 Organization Day on Oct. 22, which started with a tour of Boston's Freedom Trail and concluded back on post with the cutting of the IMCOM birthday cake.
