STUDY LOOKS AT HOW SOLDIERS COOL DOWN

Seventeen years after four Soldiers died from hypothermia during the final phase of Ranger School, researchers at the U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine at Natick Soldier Systems Center continue to study how the human body cools down, in hopes of one day developing medical techniques to help prevent such tragedies.

WITNESSING 40 YEARS OF CHANGE AT NATICK

Chris Pentheny will never forget Valentine's Day, 1972. On that Monday, he started a job at a place where he would spend the next 40 years. It must have been love at first sight.

'TASTE OF METROWEST' SAMPLES COMBAT RATIONS

The Second Annual Taste of MetroWest on March 13 featured the usual crowd of catering venues, local restaurants, farms, bakeries, drinks connoisseurs, and -- requested by invitation -- the Department of Defense Combat Feeding Directorate at Natick Soldier Research, Development and Engineering Center.
